INQUIRY DEMANDED ON U. S. POLICIES IN CHINA

BY GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Demands for an investigation of United States foreign policy swept Capitol Hill today as legislators vigorously debated the charges leveled by Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley against some of America's professional diplomats.

Meanwhile, Gen. George C. Marshall slipped quietly into the White House for a conference with President Truman and Secretary Byrnes prior to leaving tomorrow for China to replace Hurley, who resigned as ambassador yesterday.

Hurley charged career diplomats with undermining American policy in China by backing Communists or "imperialists" instead of democracy and unity.

Housecleaning Needed

Clamor for congressional investigations of Hurley's charges arose in both Senate and House, with Republicans leading the demands. Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate foreign relations committee protested that "this is no time to inject into foreign affairs matters of political expediency."

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.), saying that the conduct of American diplomats as reported by Hurley "skirts the edge of treason," had introduced a resolution calling for a special committee to investigate the whole course of U. S. foreign policy and the state department. Wherry declares that "we need a housecleaning in the state department."

Suggestions that the whole foreign system be "thoroughly cleaned and reorganized" also came from a former diplomat—Hugh G. Grant, onetime U. S. minister to Albania and Siam.

In an interview in Atlanta, Grant praised Hurley for "revealing the obstructionist tactics" of career foreign service officers.

May Reveal Names

Hurley hinted in a talk at the National Press club that he might contribute to any investigation of foreign policy.

In language as picturesque as his appearance, he declared that if attacks on him continued, he might tell "the name, number and places where we have supported ideologies contrary to the principles for which we said we were fighting this war."

Secretary Byrnes told his news conference there had been no change in American policy toward China and reiterated that U. S. troops were in North China only to disarm and repatriate Japanese forces.

Hurley today acknowledged he had told Byrnes Monday that he would return to China "temporarily." He said he had changed his mind when he read in the newspapers Monday night about the attacks made on him in Congress that day.

"I thought the time had come to commence firing," he said. "I was in contact, so I commenced."

Roosevelt And Konoye Might Have Headed Off Jap War, Grew Thinks

BY WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Joseph C. Grew said today he thought it was a "good gamble" in 1941 that a personal meeting of President Roosevelt and Japanese Prime Minister Konoye might have averted war in the Pacific.

From the tall, gray-mustached former ambassador to Tokyo, the joint congressional committee investigating Pearl Harbor also heard that:

1. Baron Hiranuma, then Japan's premier, suggested in 1939 a world conference aimed at heading off war in Europe.
2. The American embassy in Tokyo began destroying its codes—a step usually taken only when a break in relations is expected—a "few days" before Pearl Harbor.

Grew told of the 1939 Japanese proposal for a world conference in response to a question from Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.). It came just before the committee's adjournment hour and was not developed in detail.

Grew said he believed such a proposal was made, however, to Eugene Dooman, counselor of the U. S. embassy in Tokyo, at a time when he (Grew) was in the United States on leave.

Keefe asked that Dooman, who lives in Washington, be called as a witness.

Grew had related yesterday that Konoye conducted highly secret negotiations with him in September, 1941, in an effort to arrange a personal "peace" meeting with Mr. Roosevelt.

"We in Tokyo felt," Grew said, "that if Prime Minister Konoye and President Roosevelt could meet face to face" something might be worked out to avert a clash.

Yet, all that was speculative, Grew said, adding that no one could say for sure whether Konoye, in the face of opposition from military extremists, could have made any commitments he made.

Secretary Hull told the committee earlier in the week that doubt as to Konoye's ability to carry through on any promises was one factor in the president's decision against such a meeting.

British Issue Ultimatum For Evacuation Of Summer Capital

BY VERN HAUGLAND

Batavia, Java, Nov. 28 (AP)—British authorities in Bandoeng, replying to an Indonesian request for a truce, issued an ultimatum today that any Indonesian found in the northern half of the summer capital after noon tomorrow would be shot.

The ultimatum was announced to the Indonesian "governor" of West Java when he appeared at British headquarters under a white flag and asked the British to halt military actions at Bandoeng.

A British press statement said the terms provided that all Indonesians be evacuated from the area north of the east-west railroad through the center of the city by noon tomorrow, that no Indonesian civilian be permitted within 200 meters (about 200 yards) of any British or Japanese post, and that any male civilians found manning road blocks would be shot.

The "governor" said he was not in a position to assent or make counter-proposals, but promised to confer with other Indonesian leaders on the terms.

The situation in Bandoeng continued tense, with Indonesians keeping up intermittent rifle fire at the Hottan Hotel where several hundred civilian internees were quartered. Allied officials said all activities of the Red Cross and the organization for the recovery of Allied prisoners of war and internees had been brought to a complete standstill.

Burly Harry Fleisher, 42, Recites Offenses In Holdup Case Trial

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 28 (AP)—Big Harry Fleisher, Detroit police character, convicted murder plot conspirator, and prohibition era bootlegger, told his life story today from the witness stand in a night club holdup case.

The burly defendant, one of five men accused of the Dec. 2 holdup of the Aristocrat Club here, recited a story of offenses against the law over a period of a score of years and during which he served time in federal penitentiaries.

Fleisher, who is 42, gave his account under direct examination, declaring he came to America from Russia when he was five years old and that when he was 21 he engaged in bootlegging. He has been linked by police with the Detroit Purple Gang of prohibition era hoodlums.

Cross-examination by Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler of the one-man graft grand jury brought from Fleisher an admission that he had been convicted of conspiracy to murder the late State Sen. Warren G. Hooper.

Under direct examination Fleisher denied responsibility in Hooper's death, but Circuit Judge George B. Hartwick, on Sigler's objection ordered Fleisher's statement stricken from the record.

Price Warns Against Failure In Germany

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Byron Price warned today that the United States faced possible failure in its effort to help rebuild a peaceful Germany.

Price, former director of censorship, who went to Germany on a special study mission for President Truman, turned in a report containing eight suggestions for preventing that failure.

The president referred the report to the secretaries of state, war and navy, telling them to give it careful consideration "with a view of taking whatever joint action may be indicated."

Foremost among Price's recommendations was a proposal that the United States use its "full force and prestige" to break a four-power deadlock in the Allied control council at Berlin in order that Germany may be treated as an economic unit.

WELL KNOWN FIRM LOCATES IN DELTA AREA

COMPANY WILL HIRE SEVERAL HUNDRED PERSONS

The establishment of a new furniture factory to be located in the tannery building near Wells was announced yesterday by A. L. Margolis, of Chicago, executive of the Dearborn company and Freeman company, two well-known furniture manufacturers.

The new company has been named the Dearfree company and has been incorporated for $100,000, financed by both the Dearborn and Freeman interests. The company will produce virtually all types of furniture, including upholstered furniture, it is reported.

Employ Several Hundred

It is the intention to open operations at once on an assembly basis from materials supplied by the company's other plants, located at Oshkosh and Chicago, and to expand the operation on a major scale in quantity and classification of merchandise as rapidly as equipment, material and labor are available.

The company will occupy the entire floor space at the tannery location and will employ several hundred persons when full production is reached. It is anticipated that approximately 100 persons will be required immediately. Full production will not be attained, however, until new equipment, now on order, is received. Machinery available in other plants will be delivered to the Wells location to begin operations, it has been indicated.

The Dearborn and Freeman companies have been purchasing considerable quantities of stock from the Shepek Dimension company at Wells. The Dearfree company will also be a substantial customer of the Shepek plant.

Surplus Labor Here

Mr. Margolis reported yesterday, "It is the known policy of this company to cooperate with local sources of supply which should create considerable indirect business."

The establishment of the new furniture factory in Delta county comes at a time when there is a surplus amount of labor available here, due to the return of a large number of war veterans and the return of war workers from the industrial centers.

The tannery building recently was occupied by the Lambert Mirror and Novelty company but that concern utilized only a portion of the available floor space.

Officials of the company will come to Escanaba the forepart of next week to make arrangements to establish the Dearfree company in its new location. It is expected that operations will begin within the next several weeks.

Price Warns Against Failure In Germany

operation of German railways, postal service and other facilities have failed, Price said, "due almost entirely to the rigid opposition of the French."

He declared that the result was "economic dismemberment" of Germany and if that is really what France wants, Price said, "she should be made to acknowledge that policy before the world and not be permitted to hide behind the opposite pronouncements of the Potsdam declaration."

Price said he was certain that President Truman wanted to safeguard the Allied policy to have Germany eventually take her place as a peaceful and law-abiding member of the family of nations. He reported that efforts to democratize the nation moved but slowly and he said:

"We can win converts to democracy only if we again find a way of instilling hope—hope that

Marshall Appointment Brings Chungking New Hope In Civil Strife

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Nov. 28. (AP)—General Marshall's diplomatic assignment to Chungking was "well received" officially today and foreign quarters saw it as a beam of hope breaking through the darkening clouds of civil war.

The selection of a man of Marshall's stature as President Truman's special envoy created a profound impression in Chungking, where he is regarded as second in importance only to Truman himself.

Li Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U. S. forces in China, made an unheralded flight to Chungking from Shanghai for important conversations with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, presumably on Marshall's impending visit to China.

Most foreign quarters said Marshall's mission was a clear affirmation that the United States would not view with favor any attempt to break off Manchuria, inner Mongolia or Sinkiang from China by civil war or connivance.

They declared that America's policy of supporting the nine-power treaty guaranteeing China's sovereignty was re-emphasized by the appointment of a general of Marshall's prestige.

The reaction to Marshall's appointment among GIs in Shanghai was less enthusiastic. "Looks like we'll be here a long time," said one enlisted man. "They ain't sending Marshall out here to take us home."

The appointment came at a time when the Nationalist cause in Manchuria was taking a brighter turn with a report of a new Russian agreement permitting airborne landings at the Manchurian capital of Changchun and the industrial city of Mukden to the south.

The Chungking Commercial Daily News said government forces also had begun landing at the southern Manchurian port of Hulutao, from which Chinese Communists were forced to withdraw to avoid entrapment. Hulutao is 140 miles southwest of Mukden.

The government admitted, however, that Communist forces in southern Hopeh province had captured the railway center of Peislang, on the Peiping-Hankow railway 195 miles south of Peiping.

Partial returns from today's balloting at the mills in the biggest strike poll on record, showed 60,493 votes in favor of a strike and 12,318 against.

Mills from New England to California were affected, but the areas most directly concerned were the large steel producing states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The poll, conducted under the supervision of the National Labor Relations Board under the war labor disputes act, stemmed from the dispute between the union and management over whether a wage increase should be granted, as demanded by the union's policy committee at a meeting in Pittsburgh in October.

The union emphasized that the vote was merely to express the feeling of the employees regarding a possible strike. Local union leaders were warned that "serious damage" could be done to the union's position if any unauthorized or premature strike action were taken outside proper channels.

Deputy Sheriff Dale Swanson said the youths, ranging in age from 16 to 20, have confessed between 15 and 20 break-ins and six car thefts in the Royal Oak-Pontiac area.

General Motors Cuts Advertising Because Of Strike

Detroit, Nov. 28 (AP)—A spokesman for General Motors Corporation said tonight that the firm's national advertising program for the first quarter of 1946 has been withdrawn because of the strike situation.

He explained that it was "impossible to do anything about the advertisements already scheduled for the last quarter of the current year." No estimate was released as to the amount of money involved.

Rookie Policemen Get No Uniforms

Detroit, Nov. 28 (AP)—You can't tell a rookie Detroit policeman anymore by the shiny brass buttons on his uniform.

Inspector Marvin Driver, head of the police training school, said lack of materials have made uniforms unavailable for his latest class of 80 new patrolmen. As a result, they'll have to walk their beats in civilian clothes.

Just so there'll be no mistake, Driver added, the rookies will be paired with uniformed men.

UNION AND GM URGED TO TRY PARLEY AGAIN

GOVERNMENT TAKES HAND AS 225,000 REMAIN IDLE

Detroit, Nov. 28 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company today proposed that the United Auto Workers (CIO) reimburse the firm $5 a day for each union man taking part in future unauthorized work stoppages at Ford plants.

The surprise move overshadowed other developments on the automotive front today, including the first Washington meeting between government officials and union representatives of 225,000 idle General Motors workers.

Interest Widespread

Secretary of Labor Schwelmbach took part in the Washington conference at which the government agreed to ask General Motors to resume negotiations with the UAW looking towards an end of the GM strike that began Nov. 21.

The Ford proposal evoked widespread interest in the automobile industry and drew from Richard T. Leonard, director of the UAW's Ford division, the comment, "such a proposal is unrealistic and would not guarantee an end to unauthorized strikes."

The company suggested that it be empowered by the UAW to collect the penalties from "any amount collected by the company for the union under the check-off provisions" of its contract with the union.

A Ford spokesman said, "the company's position is that the union can control its membership in the matter of unauthorized stoppages, slowdowns and controlled production, but has failed to do so during the life of the present contract."

The Ford development temporarily took the spotlight from the General Motors strike, which has hit GM plants in 51 cities throughout the nation.

Few observers believed the conference between union heads and Edgar L. Warren, chief labor department conciliator, would bring any formula for a quick end to the battle between corporation and union.

The session had been officially described in advance as "informal," and there were no General Motors representatives in Washington.

As strikers continued picketing the corporation's inactive factories, the state of Michigan took official cognizance of the problem of unemployment compensation involving World War II veterans employed by General Motors.

Michigan's State Office of Veterans Affairs, established to assist the returned soldier, announced that three "test cases" of strike-idle veterans would be presented to the veterans administration in Washington for adjudication under the GI Bill of Rights.

No figure on the number of veterans employed by General Motors.

Price Warns Against Failure In Germany

Germany again can rise from the dust and become a respected nation if she will devote herself to peace and tolerance, and decent ways of life.

The one certain thing about the German people today is, he said, that "they have gone back to work with a stubborn determination to live and to rebuild their country, whatever the cost; no people in Europe is working harder."

"Intelligence reports indicate clearly," Price told the president, "that all of our propaganda effort to instill a sense of collective German guilt has failed flat."

He said the American military government administrators had made greater progress than has been made in the Russian, British or French zones toward demilitarizing and denazifying Germany.

Here, in brief, is what he proposed in his 5,000 word report:

1. A diplomatic crackdown on France.

2. A carefully planned approach to the creation of a civilian control to replace military control in the American zone. Under no circumstances must "second raters" be assigned to the civilian system.

3. Orders from the Washington to the American military government in Germany should be fully revised to give the administrators greater leeway in action.

4. Washington should approve raising the basic German food ration from 1,550 calories to 2,000 calories. Price said that was the medically approved level to prevent starvation and "there is no likelihood that such a ration would permit the bombed out, freezing, pedestrian Germans to live anything like as well as the European average."

5. The rate of denazification of essential services should be left up to the local military government which can decide on the basis of actual conditions how American policy interests will best be served.

6. Propaganda in the American zone should be given an increasingly positive character "in contrast to the long continued attempt to impress the Germans of their collective guilt, which from now on will do more harm than good."

7. American forces in Germany should be maintained strong and alert against "whatever threat of real disorder and rebellion may now lie buried beneath the surface."

On this point Price also said bluntly that "this is the wrong time to permit General Eisenhower's armed forces in Germany to be decimated and robbed of military effectiveness by demobilization."

8. The trials of all Nazi war criminals should be greatly speeded up, because delays lower the respect of the German people.

UNION AND GM URGED TO TRY PARLEY AGAIN

ors and made idle in the strike has been announced, but the total is believed to run into many thousands.

Michigan law, similar to that in many other states, holds a person ineligible for unemployment compensation if he has a direct interest in a strike.

Officials of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission were picketed today by 30 veterans protesting a ruling denying them compensation. Signs saying "What is the G. I. Bill of Rights? We fought for it, let's have it" were carried by the group.

Bricks Break Windows

In the first incident of violence attributed to the strike, two bricks were thrown through a window of the home of William H. Doerflinger, general manager of the GM steering gear division in Saginaw, at 5 a. m. today.

The union in Saginaw and Doerflinger had engaged in a dispute over procedure in distributing pay checks for last week's work. Sixty-five supervisory employees were prevented by a picket line from leaving a plant for 15 hours.

Doerflinger said the bricks thrown through his window had harmed no one and that he was "not blaming anybody but the irresponsible people who did it." Union officials deplored the incident.

As the Ford Motor Company and the UAW-CIO resumed their negotiations today over the union's per cent increase demand, the company went a step further with its "company security" counter-demand on the union.

Last week the company outlined a "company security" proposal to which it said it was entitled in the light of contract provisions which already gave "union security."

Approximately 42,500 auto plant workers were laid off in the Detroit area today—40,000 in Ford plants and 2,500 at the Hudson Motor Car Company. The layoffs, both blamed on shortages of supplies, were described as temporary.

The Ford company said its layoffs were due to strikes and other work stoppages exclusive of the General Motors walkout and that the men were expected to return to work next week. Hudson said it would resume regular production Thursday.

NOW IS THE TIME proponents of regulation over the cutting of the nation's timber resources on private as well as public lands assert. If one of the national foundation stones of wealth is not to be destroyed, it must be regulated. The states or the federal government must step in to determine which of the above photographs pictures the future of our forests. The controversy over which agency will have control is further complicated by the fact that some operating groups oppose all control.

Double Indemnity Denied Mrs. Hooper In Senator's Death

Marshall, Mich., Nov. 28 (AP)—Ruling that the death of State Warren G. Hooper, of Albion, was "homicide," Circuit Judge Blaine W. Hatch today dismissed Mrs. Callienette Hooper's suit to collect double indemnity of $10,000 insurance.

Mrs. Hooper had sought double the $10,000 on grounds that her husband's death had never been proved a murder. Her attorney, N. A. Cobb of Battle Creek, announced after the trial that the verdict would be appealed.

Mrs. Hooper will collect $100 monthly for herself and children until 1960 and $10,000 at that time.

Ax-Slaying Mystery Unsolved; Rewards Now Total $4,500

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 28 (AP)—Rewards totalling $4,500 are now offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the ax-slayer of Mrs. Lydia Thompson. Little progress has been made on the case since her body was first found beside a lonely Oakland county road October 13.

The Oakland county board of supervisors today offered a $2,500 reward and earlier a Detroit newspaper and Louis V. Thompson, the victim's husband, offered $1,000 each.

At the same time the supervisors appropriated $3,600 for an assistant to Prosecutor Donald C. Noggle, who complained lack of manpower was handicapping the investigation.

Supporting Noggle's claims that more money is needed to track down the killer, Capt. Donald S. Leonard of the state police told the supervisors, "the possibility that a maniac may have committed the crime has definitely not been ruled out. If this be the fact, then a maniac still is at large and you are vitally interested in taking this person out of circulation."

Leonard declared that the Thompson case "never will be put on the shelf."

Youth Hurt When Sled Hits Auto

Munising—John Patso, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Patso, suffered a broken right leg and a badly bruised left leg when he ran into a car driven by Joseph Bonnevill Tuesday evening while sleigh riding on Spruce street.

In a statement given to police by Bonnevill, he was driving up to the hill on Spruce street, going toward home when he saw some children approaching on sleds and he slowed down and drove toward the right side of the road. He said one of the sleds came toward the car and struck it on the left side. The boy was picked up right away and taken to the Munising hospital. Spruce street is one of the approved streets for sliding in the city.

CATTLE TEST OFFICE HERE

Peninsula Laboratory Is Established In Es-
canaba

The Michigan department of agriculture has established a laboratory at 606 Ludington street, Escanaba, for the testing of blood samples of upper peninsula cattle for Bang's disease, Charles Flyg, state director of agriculture, has announced.

Dr. G. S. Eversole, recently discharged from the U. S. Army, is the veterinarian in charge of the laboratory work at the Escanaba office.

Dr. C. H. Clark, state veterinarian, declared that all state testing for brucellosis (Bang's disease) in cattle in the upper peninsula will be conducted at the Escanaba laboratory. Veterinarians located throughout the peninsula are being requested to mail their samples to the Escanaba laboratory rather than to the Lansing laboratory.

Required by Law

As a result of legislation that became effective recently, no cows may be sold except for slaughter unless the cows have been tested for Bang's disease and have been found to be free of the contagious disease.

No blood samples of cattle will be tested at the Escanaba laboratory unless the samples have been drawn by or under the direction of a licensed veterinarian.

A sharp increase in the testing of blood samples of cattle has developed as a result of the law requiring such tests before cows may be sold. The Lansing laboratory is unable to meet the increased demand and the Escanaba laboratory was established to provide faster service to upper peninsula dairymen.

In general samples received at the Escanaba office will be tested the same day that they are received and the results promptly mailed to the veterinarians from whom the blood samples were received.

In cases where positive reactions are established, the reports are sent to the state laboratory at Lansing and an order is issued to establish a quarantine on the infected animal. In certain cases, where circumstances require it, the quarantine is applied to the entire herd.

Boy Scout Boards Of Review Are Doing Fine Work

The boards of review of the Boy Scouts of America are doing a fine job, in the reviewing of prospective Boy Scouts in their fields of advancement.

The purpose of a board of review is to review the experience of the Scout in his examination and the preparation which preceded his respective field of endeavor.

The board of review confines its activities to the Second and First Class ranks, and review of the Merit Badge fields and requirements for Star, Life, and Eagle rank, together with the requirements for Senior Scout ratings, as given in District and Council activities.

The board of review is by no means a re-examination, but is rather a check to insure that in the Scout's examination, the standards for advancement as set forth have been maintained and that the experience which the Scout has had measures up.

Boards of review have been set up in the Red Buck District in every community that has a Scouting unit, either by a specific designated board or a troop committee board of review. In either case, both are functioning well.

August Skogquist and Clarence Skogquist, Minneapolis; Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Rapid River. Many friends from Gladstone also attended the services.

Definite time and place have been set up, whereby each Scout has an opportunity to be reviewed on his achievements, once each month. At the conclusion of each board of review, specific forms are completed and filed with the Council office, at which time specific awards are made available to Scouts participating. Courts of honor in many cases follow boards of review.

Therefore, boards of review are for the purpose of not "pinning" the Scout down, but to ascertain in the minds of the board members, that said Scout has met the qualifications that are set forth for him to follow.

Discuss Plans To Bring Ski Trains Here From Cities

Efforts to secure the co-operation of the railroads serving Gladstone and Escanaba in bringing week-end "snow" or "ski" trains to the community during the winter sports season were discussed at a meeting of some 22 Escanaba and Gladstone merchants, sportsmen and railroad officials here this week.

Called a "preliminary" meeting by H. W. "Pat" Gasman who served as toastmaster at the luncheon meeting at the House of Ludington, the session was organized by Harold C. "Pat" Hayes.

It is probable that some special coaches may be added for winter sports enthusiasts in the cities this winter but a heavy demand or all railroad facilities by the armed forces still exists and no exclusive "snow trains" will be available this year.

However, it is hoped that this season will mark the beginning of the project to introduce Delta county's winter sports facilities to out-of-state sportsmen and future years may find a full development of the scheme.

Several ski experts who are employed by the railroads will come here this season to give exhibition performances and to instruct at the Escanaba and Gladstone Ski Clubs.

A Serious Charge

MAJ. General Patrick Hurley made an extremely serious charge that American career diplomats are working behind the scenes in contradiction to the established American policy in China when he resigned in disgust as envoy to China.
Hurley's resignation and his bitter denunciation of the career diplomats throws the whole state department mess sharply in public focus. Hurley's scathing indictment of the career diplomats in China is not the first indication that something is wrong within the state department, but the denunciation from a man who has been as close to the Chinese situation as Hurley has been bears the weight of evidence that cannot be ignored.

One thing is certain. We cannot have a workable foreign policy in China or anywhere else if all of the men assigned to our diplomatic service are not going to work as a unit for the same objective. Obviously American foreign policy cannot be shaped by underlings in the state department. Mr. Hurley is certainly correct in his contention that the responsibility for foreign policy must necessarily rest with the top level diplomats as well as the entire state department to work for the realization of the established policy.

If the situation in our state department is anything like the mess that Mr. Hurley presents it, he has done the nation a great service in breaking precedent and carrying the issue right out into the open.

The appointment of General Marshall, only recently resigned as army chief, as special envoy to China, succeeding Hurley, is a good one. His job is a temporary one as trouble-shooter in China. The people of the United States will trust him implicitly to get the facts.

Living Memorials

THERE will be few communities investing the public's money in marble shafts, canopies for discarded cannon and other useless monuments during the post-war era that is now here.

The campaign, started some months ago by a group of sensible persons, to establish living memorials to the heroes of World War II has captured public favor throughout the country. Instead, American communities will have public forests, swimming pools, community buildings, libraries, playgrounds and other civic improvements, which the public can use for promoting health, education and enjoyment of life.

Every community in the land will profit from the living memorials idea. It has focused public attention upon the need for better recreational and educational facilities, vital necessities if we are to build a nation of people, strong in body and mind. Right here in Escanaba there is opportunity for living memorials that will do some good to returning service men and their children in the future years. There is opportunity in Gladstone, Manistique and every city and hamlet for constructive civic improvements, which will be used and appreciated by the citizens.

Understanding Needed

THE railroad industry enjoys a high degree of public faith—a faith that has been earned by dramatic performance. But some of the things that have made dramatic railroad performance possible are not so well appreciated—investment, for example.

The entire railroad structure, the technological advancements, the streamliners, the progressively more powerful locomotives, the amazing increases in hauling capacity with fewer cars and engines—all of these things finally come back to the one word, investment; in other words, the combined savings of hundreds of thousands of persons who look upon the railroads as a sound venture and have placed their money in railroad securities.

The savings invested in the railroads, totaling many billions of dollars, have done far more than make possible efficient transportation service. The important of investment to the railroad employee, as well as the public, can hardly be overestimated. Currently, the average investment per employee is slightly less than $20,000. To understand what this means, contrast transportation on American railroads, where every man's capacity is multiplied and his work eased by the plant and equipment provided by investment, with transportation in the interior of China, remote from railroad, where the human bearer must work with his own unaided muscle. Working as hard as man can work, the Chinese carrier can earn for himself no more than a cent an hour—but the transportation service which he so laboriously produces costs the user as much as thirty cents per ton per mile.

The American railroad worker, on the other hand, using an average of $6,500 worth of rolling stock and $13,500 worth of road-way per man employed, earns a wage averaging nearly a dollar an hour—but the transportation service which he produces is sold for an average of less than one cent for hauling a ton of freight a mile. This is what happens when capital and labor join forces.

One of the biggest problems facing the railroads in the future will be the maintenance of a steady flow of investment capital in railroad transportation, in order that the rails may continue to expand in answer to the transportation demands of a growing nation. Unless the public understands the need of rate and regulatory policies designed to put the railroads on an equal competitive footing with all others in the transportation field, it cannot expect the dramatic efficiency of the railroads to endure. If the railroads are put at a disadvantage in securing their share of traffic, they will also be at a disadvantage in securing investment funds.
The railroads want more than public faith. They want public understanding.

Security in "E" Bonds

APPEALS to one's patriotism should not be necessary to induce the public to buy bonds in the Victory Loan drive for these bonds are a good investment for anyone.

The big advantage in E bond savings is that they draw 2.90 per cent annual compound interest, compared to 1.5 per cent offered by savings banks, points out Dr. Ivan Wright, nationally known economist. He warns, however, against plunging "adventure" money into investments with which the buyer is unfamiliar, or in falling for "fast return" schemes which fraudulent promoters peddle.

The necessity for women to learn something about sound investment is emphasized by the fact that they control 80 per cent of the $148,000,000,000 worth of life insurance now in force. And the necessity for their learning to save is made apparent by the fact that 60 per cent of the women between 20 and 50 pay their own way in life, while 70 per cent of them are dependent after 65, Dr. Wright points out.

As an example of the E bond savings opportunities, Dr. Wright cites the case of a 25-year-old stenographer earning $140 a month, who buys one $18.75 bond each month. If she sticks to this budget she will have a weekly income of $50 when she retires at 65, which is more than she is earning now.

THE OLD BASEBURNER (Pontiac Press)

Some fleeting memory of the days of long ago, when life was much less complicated and, in winter at least, much less comfortable than now, has driven the New York Times to recall the old farm wood-piles and woodsheds.

A big woodpile, with plenty of solid maple, oak and birch, says the Times, meant ample dry fuel for the kitchen range and the gleaming, nickel-trimmed baseburner in the parlor.

Life in those quiet winters of the 19th century's last decade apparently was even more strenuous for our eastern colleague than for urban residents in Michigan.

A baseburner fed a steady diet of good solid wood meant someone had to get part of his daily exercise in splitting it. And that, if memory isn't unreliable, wasn't exactly a high privilege when the mercury persisted in remaining near the low end of the thermometer.

The Michigan system was simpler. There was no wood to chop.

The gaudy, bulbous, mica-windowed baseburners of our childhood faithfully venerated their comforting warmth and cast their cheery glow over late Victorian parlors as long as they got their quotas of pea or chestnut anthracite twice daily.

Thus an essential morning and evening rite was the filling of one or two scuttles with Pennsylvania's pride and the dumping of the fuel into the top magazine, with which every self-respecting, up-to-date baseburner was equipped.

Comforting though it was, the baseburner had one great defect. Each fall it had to be divested of its protective garb of burlap or canvas and moved at the cost of almost superhuman effort from the woodshed to the parlor, where it was erected on its zinc covered floor protector, and each spring that paralyzing process had to be reversed.

It is our firm conviction that much of the saltier American vernacular was born of these labors. If there is anything on earth more stubborn and less cooperative than twenty feet of stove pipe with its supporting trusses of wires, we have yet to encounter it.

A FINE POINT OF GRAMMAR (Scrapbook Item)

Q. My English class and I would be grateful for one of your fine discussions of a point of grammar we are not sure of. Which tense is correct in such sentences as: "He said that he (would?) will?" let us know his decision soon?"

A. It is a matter of logic, rather than of grammar, as is the case with most of the constructions which perplex us. We should learn to overcome our awe of the bugaboo which dwells in textbooks. In English, a little logic is often worth more than a sheaf of grammars.

For example, in the foregoing sentence, we are confused by the past tense "he said," and feel that the remainder of the sentence should therefore be in the past tense. But let us not quote him and make the simple statement thus: He will let us know his decision soon. Or, let us rearrange the sentence thus: He will let us know his decision soon, he said.

Now for an easy to understand rule: Statements that are still true at the time of writing or speaking are in the present tense.

Device: Eliminate "He said," or place it elsewhere than at the beginning of the sentence. If what he said makes sense in the present tense, then the past tense is obviously incorrect. Let us try our device on a few items from the news.

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—Taking pot shots at our foreign policy is an indoor sport indulged by high and low, and one that just now seems to be enjoying new popularity. If the target is somewhat vague, it is also so big and so full of contradictions and confusions that you can hardly miss.

What many of the critics overlook is that even if we had a clearcut foreign policy, we are lacking an adequate instrument to make it effective. With a series of rapid shifts in control at the top and a host of new functions dumped in at the bottom, the poor old state department is like a ship without a rudder.

During the past two years it has gone from bad to worse. The disorganization that exists today is a serious handicap at a time when we need, perhaps more than ever before in our history, to have an efficient, smoothly-functioning department of foreign affairs.

That need should be looked at in the light of the demands soon to be made on the department. Shortly before he gave up his command in Europe to become chief of staff, General Eisenhower urged that control of the American zone in Germany be turned over to civilians at the earliest possible time.

—STATE DEPT. UNPREPARED—
But to what civilians? Obviously, the state department. The department is pathetically unprepared to take on any such responsibility, even though it's been plain for some time that it would get the job.

To prepare policy instructions for our military government in Germany, Japan and Korea, the department had until recently a staff of exactly 13 men. Efforts are now being made to recruit additional experts. But it will have to get moving in a hurry if the necessary personnel are assembled in time to take over from the military.

The military want to step out as quickly as possible. That is easy to understand, since the job of policing conquered country is one long headache. The prospect is that when they pull out, there will be nothing to substitute for military occupation.

The kind of long-term supervision that should be done requires planning and preparation. The enemy branch of the foreign economic administration presented the state department with a workable plan. It calls for detailed inspection and supervision of German science and industry, to make sure that the Germans do not secretly begin working for another try at conquest.

This is of vital importance in the era we are entering, when atomic missiles may flash across the sky without warning. It means replacing a large occupation force with a small staff of technicians who can readily spot any new rearmament effort and stamp on it with the use of force from the outside, if necessary.

—PRESENTS COMPLEX TASK—
Such a technical staff cannot be assembled overnight. If we are not prepared to move in behind military occupation, then the peril is that we will pull out altogether. In other words, we will shuffle off another of our responsibilities for world peace.

The state department is not used to coping with technical problems that call for speed and efficiency. Take the matter of dealing with German assets hidden in neutral countries.

The amount involved is not small. The Germans managed to find safe refuge outside the Reich, and outside Britain and the United States, for $1,500,000,000 in assets. Much of this flowed out of Germany in the final months of the war, when the smart insiders knew that this trial for world dictatorship had failed.

A lot of it represents investment in strategic industries in Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the Argentine. FEA wanted to organize teams of experts to inventory these assets in the neutral countries. The state department disapproved. Consequently, in Spain, where the Germans control several thousand firms and where at least 1500 active Nazi agents have taken refuge, two attaches in our embassy are trying to do the overseeing job. They have no background or training in industry, and therefore they rely on the Franco government for information.

Reorganization of the state department from top to bottom is a must. It is not too much to say that our future as a nation depends on it.

My Slip's Showing

I hasten to correct an inaccuracy in my recent article, "Heir Apparent," in which Princess Elizabeth was mentioned as the "heir apparent."

The definitions of "heir apparent" and "heir presumptive" were correctly given; but Princess Elizabeth is more accurately described as "heir presumptive," since, technically, the possibility of the birth of a male heir exists as long as King George lives. Pending such a possibility (and regardless of its improbability), Princess Elizabeth is "presumed" to be next in order of succession to the British throne.

The present level of 580.58 feet

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

HAS BEEN HIGHER — Folks with docks, cottages and small harbors along Green bay and Lake Michigan have been somewhat alarmed at the rising level of water the last few years. On the other hand there are those who believe the shore is improved in appearance by having the reedy lowlands inundated.

Latest report of water levels on Lake Michigan shows 580.58 feet above sea level, which is 2.08 feet above normal, according to Dunathan.

Henry Hathaway, meteorologist at the U. S. Weather Bureau office in Escanaba.

Will water levels go up in the coming years? Or will they decline? The question of controlling and regulating the water levels on the Great Lakes has been made a matter of study by many engineers. Out of their studies has come little more than a definite conclusion that most of the variations in level are the result of natural causes, and that man and his canals, locks and other works have little to do with it.

NO REGULAR CYCLES—One thing does stand out as a result of the studies that have been made. It is that although the lake levels have their ups and downs, the records do not show there are regular cycles. Rather it is a simple fluctuation as the result of natural causes.

The minor fluctuations are the result of winds and currents. In the early days of exploration on the Great Lakes many observers believed there were definite tidal actions, particularly on Lake Michigan. Even today, when there are strong winds or abrupt changes in atmospheric pressure, an abrupt and noticeable variation in water levels is seen.

There are seasonal ups and downs. Usually the highest seasonal level is in summer, and the lowest in the late winter months. And then there are the periodic ups and downs that occur over a period of several years. For several years the levels will increase, and then for several more they will decline.

STILL GOING UP—At the present time the Lake Michigan level is above normal by more than two feet and it is possible that it will continue to rise—or it may start to fall. Since there is no definite cyclical action it is impossible to forecast what will happen.

Although the cycle business has been proven false so far as water levels are concerned, some people, ancient mariners or young squirts, will tell you solemnly that they occur every seven years. Incidentally, this figure seven has more superstitions surrounding it than the number thirteen.

WHAT DID HAPPEN?—Casting aside numerology, let's concentrate on records of the U. S. Lakes Survey, a much more reliable source of information. These records, dating from 1860, show how the waters of the lakes have behaved day by day, month by month, and year by year.

In the 35 years Uncle Sam has been keeping track of lake levels, the waters of Lake Michigan have traveled up and down through a range of six feet three and one-half inches.

The top level was 583.6 feet above sea level in June of 1886, to a low of 577.3 in January of 1926.

The present level of 580.58 feet

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1935

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Maresch motored from Milwaukee for a Thanksgiving visit at the home of Mrs. Maresch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Curran, 507 South Ninth street.

At a quiet ceremony performed Thanksgiving afternoon in the presence of only immediate members of the families, Celeste Elizabeth Quinn, daughter of Mrs. Michael Quinn, became the bride of Ernest E. Peterson, son of Mrs. Martin Peterson, 817 South Tenth street.

Manistique—Mrs. Frank Carney of this city ended a successful deer hunt when she killed a 175 pound buck on Thanksgiving day. The animal had an eight point head.

Mrs. John Kell Sr., aged Wilson pioneer, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Samuel McNeely, at Daytona Beach, Fla., as the result of a fall sustained Monday evening, Nov. 25, according to word received here.

20 Years Ago—1925
At the Delta theater Vilma Banky was starred in a cinema romance called "The Dark Angel" which was described as "a love revelation to plumb the depths of your soul."

Schradler's Music House advertised the new Orthophonic Victrola—"dance music that fills the room will not be drowned out by the shuffling of dancers' feet."

At St. Joseph's auditorium "Under the Rouge" was playing. This "strong dramatic picture" had a cast of notables including Tom Moore and Ellen Percy. Vaudeville acts by Escanaba and Gladstone talent were offered between reels.

At the Community theater in Gladstone patrons were offered "Drusilla with a Million Dollars" featuring Kenneth Harlan, Mary Carr and Priscilla Bonner.

The George D. MacKillican motor company was offering the new Chrysler four sedan at $1095.

is, therefore, in between the recorded extreme high and the extreme low.

AVERAGE WAS HIGHER — Back in the early days of the lake survey record the average level of Lakes Michigan and Huron was higher than in recent years.

That was when Michigan, Wisconsin and Ontario were heavily timbered. The run-off of ground water was less rapid. All water levels were greater for this reason.

Besides this reason, there is the additional factor of the Chicago drainage canal, the deepening of channels between Lake Michigan and Lake Erie through the Detroit river. Just what effect these man-made changes have had on the lake levels is not certain, although it is natural to suppose they increased drainage from the lakes and reduced levels.

At one time it was believed that the Chicago drainage canal was the direct cause of the lower levels on Lake Michigan, and there was extreme agitation over the prospect that dock and harbor facilities would become useless. Then the levels began going up. Now they are back to above normal. Chicago continues to drain water from Lake Michigan to flush its sewage down into the Mississippi river, has requested permission to make a greater diversion of water.

Always a matter of speculation and interest to people who live along its shores, Lake Michigan water levels are inconstant and variable. Owners of shore property would be better satisfied if there were some method of control.

G. I.—VETERANS SERVICE
Q. My husband volunteered in the Navy for six years. He has served three years and has sufficient points to be eligible for discharge. Is there any chance of him being released before the enlistment period ends?

A. Enlistees whose enlistment contracts have not expired are not affected by the point system; they will be required to serve out the terms of enlistment.
Q. What is the pay of a private? Is it increased by reason of the serviceman being married and having dependents?

A. The base pay is $50 per month ($54 for private, first class), but it is not increased by reason of marriage or dependency.
Q. What has been done on the question of a new uniform for the Navy?

A. Although a new uniform for enlisted men is now being considered by the Uniform Board, no announcement has as yet been made by the Navy Department.
OF GENERAL INTEREST
Q. Where is Father Marquette buried? Some say he is buried in Marquette and others say the grave is located at St. Ignace, Michigan.

A. Father Jacques Marquette died May 18, 1675. Sometime later the Kishkash Indians carried his bones to the Mission St. Ignace where on Tuesday, June 9, 1675, they were reinterred beneath the floor of the new chapel built in 1674 by Father Henry Nouvel and his associate Father Philip Piereson. The building was destroyed by fire in 1706. In September 1887, Father Edward Jucker, pastor of St. Ignace discovered the grave and remains and they rest under a monument erected by the citizens of St. Ignace in 1882.

Q. Why wasn't the Panama Canal built at sea level, without locks?

A. A sea level canal would have been possible at the Isthmus of Panama, but extensive excavation would have been required, since the lowest part of the Continental Divide on the Isthmus is about 276 feet above sea level.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—Clearest call for congressional action on reconversion was voiced last week in a little-noticed speech by the ex-Minneapolis street-sweeper, Representative William J. Gallagher. Without any hesitation, he pinned responsibility for the congressional sit-down strike right where it belongs—on the leadership of important house committees.

Gallagher, a member of four committees (census, Indian affairs, mines and mining, and pensions), pointed out that only the Indian affairs committee has been at all active. "I might just as well not be on a committee at all," he remarked.

The bent, white-haired former supporter of Henry George called for an end to the long delay in stalling off the St. Lawrence Seaway project. He called for action on the full employment bill, the 65-cent minimum wage bill, and other important measures bound up with reconversion.

Reason for the long delays in committees, he said, is that "leaders on both sides of the house do not trust the members. If they are not in complete agreement on the objective of these measures, at least they should permit them to come before the house for a vote."

"Why should we sit here day after day doing nothing but talk, talk, criticize, and fight battles that are past, in place of having our eyes to the future for the benefit of our country and for the benefit of the soldier boys? . . . I want action and sane thinking."

It was one of the sanest speeches congress has heard in weeks.

NOTE—As long as reactionary southern congressmen are chairmen of committees they can bottle up legislation and prevent its coming to a vote.

—SPELL THE NAME RIGHT
No. 1 rule of all good advertising men is to remember names—particularly the names of clients. All successful government executives understand the same rule—especially when it comes to their clients—the members of congress who vote them money.

That's why irascible old Senator Kenneth McKellar, chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee, couldn't understand the lapses of Assistant Secretary of State William Benton when he appeared before McKellar's committee. Benton, founder with OPA's Chester Bowles of one of the nation's top advertising agencies, was testifying in secret session, trying to get more appropriations for the state department.

But Benton couldn't remember McKellar's name. Other senators chuckled behind their hands at the Tennesseean's annoyance, but Benton kept addressing the venerable chairman as "Senator Keller." Finally, McKellar could stand it no longer. Grabbing a pencil and a scratch pad, he interrupted Benton to point out, "Mr. Benton, that's the fifth time you've done that. My name is McKellar—here, let me write it out for you."

Then, in labored hand, McKellar spelled out his name on the paper and handed it to Benton. The ex-advertising executive flushed and kept the reminder before him during the rest of his testimony.

—J. L. LEWIS COMES HOME—
Officials on both sides publicly deny reports that John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers Union will rejoin the American Federation of Labor. However, privately the deal already has been made.

Lewis will be returned to the fold at the next AFL executive council meeting in Miami, January 21. Furthermore, the tempestuous mine leader will be granted his No. 1 demand, a seat in the executive council for his 600,000 mine workmen.

Details of the reunion were worked out in a series of secret confabs between Lewis and AFL moguls, including President Green, Carpenters' Boss "Big Bill" Hutcheson, and others during the labor-management conference.

Biggest immediate barrier to be overcome was the lack of vacancies on the executive council. However Green and his associates have now worked out a neat little plan to remedy this—the ouster of Harvey W. Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists.

Brown has been in hot water with AFL bigwigs for a long time because of non-payment of per capita taxes, growing out of a dispute between him and Hutcheson over unionization of millwrights. Only about 5,000 millwrights (they install machinery in industrial plants) are involved, but Brown and Hutcheson have been battling furiously as to which shall collect dues from them.

Brown has threatened several times to pull out of the AFL unless the issue is decided in his favor and has paid no per capita taxes for the last year to show that he means business.

Several months ago, Green told the Machinists' boss flatly to "get the taxes on the line" or face suspension. Brown's answer to this ultimatum was that he would pay the back taxes only after the millwright dispute was settled by the AFL executive council—meaning, of course, settled in his favor.

There's no chance of this while the potent Hutcheson is sitting on the board. But even should Brown repent and kick in, he still will be given the gate at the January meeting under an AFL regulation providing for the suspension of any union which is three months in arrears in the payment of per capita assessments.

Brown's removal will be a double victory for Hutcheson. Not only is he getting rid of an enemy and thus making it possible to put the full might of the AFL behind his drive to organize the Millwrights, but he is also getting a close crony, John L. Lewis, a seat at the AFL council table.

With the nation's house shortage, we're expecting someone to bring back, most any day now, "Tenting Tonight!" as a song of the times.

CHECK HOME FIRE HAZARDS

Chief Prepares List Of Precautions Against Winter Blazes

With winter here to stay for four months or more Escanaba residents are likely to see the city's fire engines out more often because "cold weather means more fires" according to Fire Chief Arvid Johnson who has issued a number of helpful precautions against winter fire dangers.

His list begins with roofs. "Houses should have fire-resistant roofs to protect them properly from sparks or neighboring fires," the chief said, "and chimneys should be regularly inspected for cracks and soot, and should be cleaned and repaired if necessary."

In stressing the importance of insulation, Chief Johnson said "The chimney should be insulated so that walls nearby are not too warm for your hand; the same holds true for flues and pipes, especially if they are near woodwork. A particularly dangerous spot is the place where the smoke pipe enters the chimney."

Proper Furnace Care

"Many heating fires begin in the furnace room," he pointed out, "either because the furnace is defective or because it is not given the right care. Furnaces should not be forced or allowed to overheat. If you have been getting along with a furnace too small for your needs during the war, it should be replaced as soon as possible."

Fuel storage is another important item in winter safety. Coal should not be packed too tightly and it is best to use first the coal that has been stored first. "If you use oil," the fire chief added, "have the oil tank and lines carefully inspected for leaks. Store your oil outside the house, if possible."

NEW ENGINES DEFY DIESELS

Coal-Burning Locomotive Will Have Great Improvements

Washington—New coal-burning locomotives of postwar design that reach the heights of power and economy in rail transport are already here, John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, said yesterday. He discussed what he characterized as "the amazing results" already achieved by coal operators in conjunction with certain railroads and locomotive builders to meet diesel electric locomotive competition by developing coal-burning locomotives of radically improved design. "The continued use of coal by the railroads for their own motive power is of the deepest concern, not only to the producers of coal but to the railroads themselves," Mr. Battle said. "Eighty-four per cent of the nation's coal moves by rail from the mines. Employment for hundreds of thousands of men, in the mines and on the railroads and elsewhere, depends upon the continued use of coal in large volume."

The displacement of coal-burning locomotives by diesel power, electric drive and oil burners, has been on the horizon for a long time and in recent years has assumed menacing proportions, Mr. Battle said. The producers of bituminous coal have been alert to this competitive threat and have set out to meet it in a commonsense way by improving the coal-burning locomotive, he added.

"The time, efforts and money expended by the coal operators, affiliated with the National Coal Association, and more recently by the locomotive development committee of Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., financed jointly by the coal producers and by some of the larger Eastern railroads, in studies and experimentation with radically new and different locomotive designs, have already borne fruit," Mr. Battle asserted. "Some of the new locomotives," he continued, "are of steam turbine design with geared drive and already have demonstrated their capabilities in actual service. The turbine-electric drive is also being investigated vigorously, and one of these new giants—in this pulverized-coal-fired Babcock and Wilcox water-tube boiler will supply a turbine-electric drive, is now under construction."

Bark River

Sunnyside PTA

Bark River, Mich.—Give thanks for the glory of harvest and food in manner and reason of the first Thanksgiving Day. This statement was made by Rev. Emory Pokrant at the meeting of the Sunnyside Parent-Teachers Organization held Tuesday evening, Nov. 20.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Arthur Sundquist. After customary reports and roll call, a report was given on the Halloween Carnival in which the unit participated with the civic clubs of Bark River. It was decided that the unit would pay their customary share for the Christmas candy for the children.

The December meeting was scheduled for Friday evening, Dec. 14, due to the fact that the annual Christmas program presented by the children of Sunnyside will be held Thursday evening, Dec. 20.

The president announced that the Tuberculosis Clinic will be held at the Junior High School at Escanaba from Nov. 23 to 29 from 1:30 to 8:30 p. m. This service is open to all adults and to children over 14 years of age.

Upon adjournment of the meeting the following program was presented by Mrs. Joseph Madalinski:

"Thanksgiving Meditation"—Mrs. Frank Konkel.

"A Fair Complaint"—Danny Dabalski.

Song—"My Tribute"—Assembly.

"The Puffin"—Arlene Johnson.

"Baby Mouths"—Joan Barr.

"Deer"—John Pearson.

"Fireflies"—Joanne Pearson.

"Are You?"—Mrs. Ebrath Peterson.

The principal speaker of the evening was Rev. Emory Pokrant of Bark River, who gave a very interesting and impressive lecture on "America's Reason for Thanksgiving."

Following the program, lunch was served by Mesdames Clarence Anderson, Clifford Olson, Frank Konkel and R. N. Dahlberg.

Bark River, Mich.—Ronald Bruce spent Thanksgiving week end at his home here. He is attending Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton.

Council In Special Session Gives Yacht Club Pump House Lease

At a special session of the city council Tuesday night which was called, according to several councilmen, for the purpose of discussing the lease of the old water pumping station to the Escanaba Yacht Club for use as a clubhouse, the council unanimously granted the lease to the organization for the consideration of one dollar a year, the said lease to run on a year-to-year basis until such time as a proposed marine building is constructed and ready for occupancy.

The motion to grant the lease was proposed by Councilman Gasman and received unanimous support following a discussion.

The yacht club delegation at the meeting was composed of Charles W. Stoll and O. V. Thatcher.

The council also granted a contribution of $1,000 to the community chest fund, an annual custom, and voted an allowance of $300 to the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau for advertising in the Lure Book, the bureau's yearly publication.

According to the minutes of the meeting "there was some discussion regarding the returns to the city by the county treasurer of delinquent taxes and special assessments in respect to knowing just what proportion of the total amount paid to the county treasurer was returned to the city. It was then moved by Councilman Logan and supported by Councilman Nelson that the city, in order to keep its records clear, insist that a breakdown of all returned funds due to the sale of lots on tax sales and all refunds be given to the city treasurer each time returns are made. The motion was carried unanimously."

In the absence of City Clerk Carl E. Anderson, minutes of the meeting were kept by City Manager A. V. Aronson.

Councilmen were told of the special session by telephone but Daily Press representatives were not informed in advance and the report of the meeting was not secured until yesterday.

Regular council meetings are held on the first and third Thursdays of each month but two sessions had already been held in November prior to Tuesday's special meeting.

Banana Shortage Is Aggravated By Hurricane Damage

The shortage of bananas in retail stores in Escanaba and elsewhere is likely to continue for some time.

According to the Chicago Pack-er, the latest information received by the U. S. department of agriculture reveals that recent hurricane damage had destroyed 50 per cent of the Honduras banana crop. Damage losses as high as $15,000,000 are reported and shipments of this commodity to this country have been reduced from 185,000 to 85,000 stems weekly.

Buck Mine Reduces To Only Two Shifts

Caspian—Effective Monday, Dec. 3, operations at the Buck mine, P-M property, will be reduced from three to two shifts a day, to permit sinking of the shaft from the tenth to the eleventh level, Verona office announced yesterday.

Most of the men on the third production shift, numbering more than 50, will be laid off, the announcement said.

During the war and up to last week the Buck was worked six days a week, three shifts a day. Last week a company announcement said that effective yesterday, the production schedule was cut from six to five days a week.

The curtailment is due largely to a reserve of one on the stockpile, and decreased demand.

Return Of Price Ceilings Advised On Citrus Fruits

Ishpeming—"The OPA made a serious error in removing price ceiling on citrus fruits at this time and we hope they will be restored," S. M. Cohodas, president of Cohodas Brothers Co., fresh fruit and vegetable dealers, said here commenting on the last week's skyrocketing of orange and lemon prices.

"OPA," he said, "made the error, as far as oranges are concerned, in removing price controls at a time when the supply is short. The Valencia market is about cleaned up and navels won't be ready for two or three weeks.

"The ceiling on lemons, in all fairness, was a little bit low, but it would be far better to maintain the ceiling they had than to lift controls entirely.

"A word should be said to acquaint the people with the manner in which prices are set.

"The greatest portion of fresh fruits and vegetables passes through the public auction market, where bidding is actually done for the commodity. The average auction market price is then quoted to the private sales market, to buyers such as our company.

"Now, when ceilings were imposed, bidding generally went to the control limit and, of course, ended there. With the ceiling off the bidding went higher than previous levels.

"We are strongly hopeful OPA will re-impose price ceilings. If it does not, we feel confident that with the introduction into the market of new crops the situation will automatically adjust itself."

TO HEAR C&NW PETITION TODAY

Ask To Abandon Runs Between Iron River And Escanaba

The Michigan Public Service commission will at 9:30 o'clock this morning in the court house at Escanaba open a hearing on the petition of the C. & N. W. Railroad to permanently abandon operation of two trains between Escanaba and Iron River.

The trains operated to March 12, 1945, when they were discontinued under an ODT general order permitting discontinuance of passenger trains with low occupancy percentages.

Opposition to the proposed permanent abandonment of the trains has been voiced by the Delta county board of supervisors and the Escanaba city council in resolutions recently adopted by those governmental bodies.

At the hearing here today all interested parties are expected to attend and present testimony, the commission has advised.

In its application to permanently discontinue operation of the two trains, the railroad stated that operation of the passenger trains was "a waste of transportation and most uneconomical" and that the passenger business was "negligible."

The railroad further pointed out that passengers are now being accommodated by bus service.

Need For Wood Lends Urgency To Fight For Regulation Over Timber Harvesting Practices

Forests are the Nation's greatest renewable natural resource. It took the war, in which wood either as lumber or paper products was rated among the most critical war materials, to show us the importance of forests in national economy. New chemical treatments rendering wood suitable for new uses, development of plastics from wood, strides in laminated wood construction—all promise new demands on forests, added on the old. Is it not time we take stock how productivity of forests may be maintained?

When American forest conservation history is written, record must be made of a slow, steady rise in public sentiment in the decade before 1940 for public control of cutting on all privately owned timber lands. Characteristically complacent Americans believe they, themselves, made this nation great. Natural resources made this nation great. Greatness will continue only so long as they remain available in volume. In fact the very Americans who claim credit for their country's dominant position have through long feverish exploitation, done all they could to insure impairment and eventual destruction of the foundation stones of greatness. In no other natural resource is this more evident than forests.

Agency Squabble Unlike mineral wealth which, once removed, is gone forever properly used forests are self-perpetuating. Wrongly used, their destruction adds to national waste-land, already too plentiful. Most timberlands are privately owned and probably will so remain. That is where they belong. It follows then that cutting practices must be controlled on such areas.

There are two opinions on the regulating agency, one that it be the federal government, the other that it be the states. A third group says, "There is no need to do anything." This last plea is from those now engaged in woods operations with no thought for future growth. Land is simply stripped and left to fate. It is the individual pocket-book against public welfare. Mature timber should be harvested. This group wants to be free to cut the destructive way. "A man has a right to do what he likes with his own," even though it robs the community of potential wealth and strips watersheds of protective cover.

Many progressive timber owners and operators do not hold this attitude, yet the group that does is powerful enough in some states to block cutting practice legislation. The antidote to this power is education and effective leadership.

On the question of federal versus state control, the movement for the former heads up in government itself. Lyle F. Watts, Chief of the U. S. Forest Service, federal spokesman in all matters relating to forestry, says:

"Proper forest land use is a matter of national significance with which the federal government must be concerned because timber is such an important item in the national economy. Protection from destructive cutting is as important as fire protection. To insure nationwide adherence to satisfactory levels of forest practice, standards for regulation should be established by federal law.

Michigan Leads

"This does not mean the states could not administer forest regulations within their borders in accordance with their own procedures. But it would mean the local rules of practice adopted by states should not fall below the standards set up in federal law. The Department of Agriculture (Forest Service) should have authority to act directly in any state which fails to enact suitable legislation and enforce adequate rules of practice."

Watts stands upon firm ground. If right forest resource use cannot be brought about in one way, it must be in another. A state to retain sovereign status must assume its sovereign obligations. If not, its prerogatives must pass to hands willing to exercise them, namely, the federal government. No other choice can or should be had.

Will Michigan set its house in order and establish a new trend in laws to protect and foster one of

EXPECT RECORD KILL OF DEER

Hunting Success In U. P. Better Than Previous Peak In 1941

Figures released yesterday by the conservation department on the number of deer taken south of the Straits of Mackinac indicates that all previous records of hunting success will be broken this year. It was reported by John Angulin, district conservation supervisor at Escanaba.

To 9 p. m. Tuesday the count at the Straits showed that 8,678 bucks, 165 bear, 16 coyote, 13 bob cat, 8 wolves and 25 fox have been taken out of the Upper Peninsula.

The total number of deer is expected to exceed 10,000 by the end of the season Nov. 30. Previous peak figure at the Straits was 10,168 deer in 1941, which included a considerable number of camp does which were permitted to be taken that season. Last year the total at the Straits was only about 7,000.

In addition to the deer taken south of the Straits so far this season, the conservation department has also issued permits for the transportation of 1,090 bucks the prime sources of national wealth? Leadership is the dominant factor. With Michigan, now first in lumber production in the North Central Region, taking the initiative in proper cutting laws, it is reasonable to believe other states would follow and, as "great oaks from little acorns grow," it could be hoped that Michigan's course would be followed by other states in ever increasing numbers until the light for forest conservation is finally won.

City Council Decides On Terms Of Sale Of Building To J. F. Kluit

Purchase by the Hiawatha Metal Products company of the building housing its manufacturing plant was made nearer of realization by action of the city council at a special session Tuesday evening.

In a resolution, passed unanimously by that body the sale of the building, owned by the city, was authorized on condition that a sizeable loan, the company declared to be negotiating through its banker, Fred Hahne, is approved and granted.

Considerable time was taken up by the council at Tuesday evening's session discussing the move and in revamping a paragraph in the resolution which had to do with making the sale of the building contingent upon the nature of the loan secured.

In preliminary negotiations, shortly before the special session, members of the council seeking to learn the size of the loan and the agency through which it was being sought, were informed that that was a matter of a confidential nature which neither J. F. Kluit, the manager, nor his banker, Mr. Hahne, wished to divulge. Assurance was given, however, that the loan was of a size sufficient to warrant the operation of the plant on the scale intended.

Safeguard Title
Members of the council, in accordance to the plea of the company, took the precaution to safeguard its interest in the building and to fulfill the conditions under which the lease and option were originally given — to be used as housing for a manufacturing plant of a permanent nature turning out a finished product and offering employment opportunities to residents of the community.

The building, formerly used as garage and headquarters for the Michigan highway department, was acquired by the city about a year ago. The original intention had been to use the building for municipal purposes. Later it was leased to J. F. Kluit, of Detroit, for a factory. Mr. Kluit was given a lease with the option to purchase for $14,250 at the end of a two-year period, the stipulation being that if at the end of the lease period the company demonstrated that it was a going concern, actually in production, the sale would be made.

Made Many Improvements
Since the company became installed in the building, Mr. Kluit has made many notable improvements on it and has equipped it with machinery of the most modern sort. For the first several months the establishment was assigned for production of certain phases of war equipment. Due to inability to secure vital raw material and machinery required for specialized production, little was produced up to the time that war contracts were terminated. In the meantime, much time was lost in replacing war production machinery with equipment designed for production of roller skates, bicycles, and various types of household appliances in which the company was eventually to specialize. This change over has, at last been accomplished, but again the scarcity of vital raw materials has held up production.

Simultaneous with the installation of machinery has been the constant improvement of the building, transforming a very much run down place into a substantial property.

Council Ponders
Mr. Kluit, in a recent interview with a Press representative, stated that under normal conditions, the

Petrified Deer
Horn Found In Rock Near Here

Limestone formations containing shells and marine growth are common enough, but Leon LaPorte this week came upon a rock in which was imbedded the petrified portion of a horn of a deer.

The base of the horn protrudes from one side of the rock while the broken off portion sticks out from the other side and the outcropping of the prong is also visible. The rock itself is of marl and sand composition while the petrified horn is almost flinty in its hardness.

Mr. LaPorte found the rock near the resort property about fifteen miles north of here which he sold a few months ago.

Longmont, Colo. (AP)—The sandman nipped a two-boy crime wave. Police found the lads—ages 13 and 14—cuddled in a doorway in the early morning, asleep beside their loot which included a guitar, $25 in cash, boots, and clothing taken from a nearby ranch.

Scoutmasters Hold Meeting In City

A meeting of Gladstone Scoutmasters, commissioners and advancement chairman, namely, LeRoy Hamilton of Troop 467, Harold Mackie of Troop 466, Neighborhood Commissioner, Oscar Ohman and Advancement Chairman C. E. Hawkins, was held at the State Police Post last Tuesday evening.

Three important matters of business were discussed in preparation of forthcoming events for units of Gladstone. A decision was established on a court of honor to be held by the Gladstone Units during the first week of the Christmas holidays.

Prior to this highlighted event, a board of review will be held at the local high school December 18th. This board of review was set at this date in order that all Scouts may have the opportunity of getting achievements completed in plenty of time. This will be the last board of review until the New Year, and all Scouts wishing to advance, must make use of this opportunity.

During the holiday vacation, a Ski Frolic is anticipated, with all units of Gladstone participating. Arrangements for such an event are now in the making with tentative dates having been set.

Symbolic of the annual celebration of Boy Scout week, which will be held February 8th to the 14th, it was suggested that for definite celebration that the theme for the Red Buck district, be the merit badge field. Instead of the usual window displays, each unit would formulate a specific merit badge and make such display as necessary. By such a method of participation among all Scout units of the district, much could be accomplished.

The forthcoming Midwest First Aid Contests, were discussed at some length regarding dates for troop, neighborhood, district and council contests. It was the desire of those present to have the preliminary contests as early as possible, thus giving more time to concentrate on the district and council events. Definite date pending on the action of other Scoutmasters of the district.

The Red Buck District Court of Honor for all units of the entire district, will be held in Gladstone during Boy Scout Week, as a fitting climax to the Boy Scouts of America movement, which will be thirty six years of continued operation in America.

ANOTHER CADET TAKEN BY FLU

Loss Of Tucker Would Be Blow To Army For Navy Battle

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
West Point, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP)—Influenza felled another member of the Army squad today as the Cadets began training off in their preparation for the Navy game at Philadelphia Saturday.

The latest victim is George (Barney) Poole, second string end, who was confined to his quarters with a temperature of 101. Both Poole and Arnold Tucker, regular Army quarterback, missed today's practice which included a 30-minute scrimmage, last contact work for the Cadets.

Tucker, however, was recovering satisfactorily from the light case of flu that sent him to the hospital yesterday with a temperature of 102.

Poole's condition was not considered serious enough for hospitalization. "I'm sure Barney will be all right for Saturday," said Coach Earl (Red) Blaik, but he pointed to the possibility that the illness might affect the endurance of both Poole and Tucker in the game.

Should Tucker be unable to play, his loss would be a staggering blow to the Army team. He is the "man under the center" in all of Army T-formation plays and does much of the team's passing. He has played in six of Army's eight games this year, completing 12 of the 18 passes he has thrown for a total of 220 yards and three touchdowns.

Today's final scrimmage, somewhat lighter than yesterday's, was still rougher than the average squad would be expected to undertake three days before such an important game.

But Blaik figures that "you've got to keep your appetite keen with the proper amount of scrimmage," although "you mustn't overdo it."

At Annapolis, meanwhile, the inevitable weather angle entered the Army-Navy game picture in a heavy rain but a visit by Britain's Fleet Admiral Sir James F. Somerville gave the Middies a break.

Ceremonies honoring Admiral Somerville caused the academy's schedule for the day to be moved ahead and enabled the Middies to turn out early for more than a two-hour workout in their final regular practice of the season.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Escanaba fight fans, including some of the men who helped to promote the Golden Gloves tournaments here in prewar days, are getting itchy for a return of boxing to the local sports program, but a cursory glance at the picture shows very conclusively that it is impossible to resume boxing shows here this winter. There just are not enough boxers in the area to develop a successful season. The fighters, of course, are still in service. By the winter of 1946-47, there should be plenty of good material available.

Fumbling Maroons May Dim Alabama Rose Bowl Glamor

BY KRIS KREEGER

State College, Miss., Nov. 28 (AP)—The Mississippi State Maroons, a good football team sidetracked all the way from glory to oblivion by a couple of fumbles, can take plenty of glitter off the Rose Bowl Saturday.

To do it, they must beat mighty Alabama, the guest team in the Pasadena New Year's day classic. That's a huge order for any club; and a cursory glance at the respective records would indicate that the Maroons are foolhardy to entertain the mere dream of toppling the crushing Crimson Tide.

But a look behind the bare scores reveals the interesting fact that the Maroons could have been high up among the nation's unbeaten teams if they could have avoided only two of the innumerable breaks that have gone against them this season.

State has been beaten twice, each time by one point—14 to 13 by Tulane, and 7 to 6 by University of Mississippi. Against Tulane, a State back fumbled with second down and three to go for a touchdown, and a Tulanian recovered. The Maroons dropped the ball six times while playing Old Miss, and lost it three times.

And in each of those two losing games, State receivers dropped two touchdowns passes.

It might be argued that a team which errs so often lacks an essential element of greatness. Allyn McKee, the Maroons' coach, expressed something along that line today.

"The breaks have gone against us, it's true. But fumbling that often is bad football," he said. "The fact remains, however, that if only one of those many vital breaks had gone the other way in each game, State would be facing Alabama undefeated, with victories over four Southeastern conference foes, and undoubtedly recognized as a powerful and dangerous eleven."

impossible to resume boxing shows here this winter. There just are not enough boxers in the area to develop a successful season. The fighters, of course, are still in service. By the winter of 1946-47, there should be plenty of good material available.

Boxing is an expensive sport from the promotional angle, even the so-called amateur variety. There are sanction fees, state licenses, medical examinations, hall rentals, advertising, referee's fees, travel expenses, etc. The prospects for boxing promotion in the postwar period, however, are exceptionally bright. In addition to the lads who had fight experience before entering service, there will be available many lads who learned to box in the army and navy.

Escanaba high school athletic coaches are trying to determine why it is that certain school classes fail to produce the normal amount of interscholastic athletic talent. Last year's senior class was virtually a washout as far as varsity football and basketball material was concerned. This year's junior class is also below average, although the class offers more possibilities than did the seniors of last season. There were no juniors in the Eskymos football team starting lineup this past fall and present indications are that there will be no juniors in the starting lineup of the basketball team.

This is an unhealthy situation because it means that, barring a miracle, there will be a dearth of experienced athletic material next year for the Eskymos football and basketball teams. Coaches do not like to have their varsity squads completely dominated by senior classmen because the coaches must look ahead to the succeeding year as well as to the current season. The coaches like to have their teams quite evenly divided between seniors and underclassmen, thereby providing sufficient "seed" for future plantings.

What about baseball in the upper peninsula high schools next spring? The revival of the national sport in the peninsula depends to a considerable extent upon the promotion of baseball as an interscholastic sport in the high schools. There is still no indication that any of the Delta county schools are considering to promote baseball in 1946, but the information of a Menominee range baseball circuit has already been established. Delta county youngsters less enthusiastic about the nation's most popular pastime? We doubt it.

PRO GRID LOOP RECORDS MIXED

Bears Lead In Eight Departments, But Are Near Cellar

BY JIMMY JORDAN
Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—There's a paradox in the National Football League this season that perhaps even "Shorty" Ray, the pros' stopwatch and slide-rule expert can't explain.

It concerns the Chicago Bears and the Cleveland Rams.

Those big bad Bears of old, who looked more like pandas until they met Green Bay for the second time, lead the league in eight departments, official statistics reveal—yet they're next to last in the Western Division.

Cleveland, Western Division leader, is first in only three departments.

Just how it figures out is anybody's guess, but here's where the Bears are tops for the entire league: most first downs, 152; most first downs by rushing, 78; most yards passing, 1,723; most rushes, 385; fewest opponents' passes completed, 67; fewest yards gained by foes on runback of intercepted passes, 107; fewest yards gained by opponents on laterals, 9; most first downs by penalty, 17.

Cleveland leads in total yards gained with 3,193, just 50 more than the Bears, and in yards gained rushing, 1,594. The Rams also have held their foes to a completion average on passes of .380.

While that more or less upside-down statistical revelation is causing some head-scratching around the circuit, figures released today by the league's service bureau also showed that seven records are in danger of being toppled before the season ends Dec. 9.

A new low of 9.46 per cent of pass interceptions and a new high of 45.1 per cent of completions were recorded in the first 43 games, and will be records if that pace is maintained.

What Does Army Grid Team Rate? College Or Not?

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—The Army football team, right now a top topic of sports conversation, was under discussion.

"It's really great," one fellow said admiringly, then added quite seriously: "It's too bad it isn't a college team."

There it was, the core of much of the resentment felt in some quarters concerning the phenomenal success of the West Point eleven.

Just what the Army team is he did not say, although it's assumed he placed it somewhere in that hazy football no-man's-land somewhere between amateur and professional.

Well, up to a couple of years ago when the Army gridders were taking their lumps pretty regularly in games with college teams, nobody mentioned that the service school was not a college team. Suddenly the team starts winning winning, sensationally, and boom, it's no longer a college team.

Cadets Are Paid
We are just a little puzzled as to just why it isn't a college team. The students are in the collegiate age group. They are under-graduates. The scholastic grade is steeper than it probably is at any other school, Annapolis excepted. Athletes are shown no favoritism. If they don't keep up in their studies, they're out, that's all.

The fact that cadets at West Point receive a modest stipend may have something to do with it. They all receive the same, whether they are football players or a little jerk on the tug-o-war team. If any, a boy's athletic inclinations or abilities have nothing to do with it, and we know that if a football player hoped to cash in on his ability at a school, in a purely amateur way, of course, West Point is the last place he would contact.

Suppose Mr. X has a boy who wants to go to West Point. Practically any Mr. X, or Mr. Y, or Mr. Z would be pretty proud if his boy had the scholastic ability to get into the Point, and if an appointment could be obtained.

Mr. X's boy gets in, and in the course of time decides to go out for football. He's pretty good, and makes the team. Wouldn't papa X be pretty sore if his boy wasn't regarded as a legitimate collegian, or if even was intimated he was a professional?

If efforts are made to get ap-

RARE ALBINO BUCK SHOT—Rare game was bagged by Charles Stice, of 7346 William street, Dearborn, when he shot the only Albino buck so far reported killed in the state this season near Spruce. Not only is the white deer an oddity in the state but the buck shown above had other distinguishing features. Its left antler had only three points while the right boasted four, and it had a deformed right hind foot. The unusual buck weighed 140 pounds. Stice, who was staying at the Capra Tacis farm near Spruce, said it was the first deer he had shot in the past seven years he has come to the north country to hunt.

Louis Still Too Tough For Conn, Says Trainer

BY NED BROWN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Los Angeles—Mannie Seaman is in New York to supervise Joe Louis's preparation for the defense of the title against Billy Conn next June. Work will begin at once.

Seaman was with the Brown Bomber in the capacity of a procurer of sparring partners and sharp-eyed observer before Jack Blackburn died, took over the actual training when Old Chappie passed away.

"Don't let anyone tell you that Louis won't be razor sharp," says Seaman, a chunky little black-haired, blue-eyed guy with red apple cheeks and the face of a cherub. "Louis is the easiest heavyweight to train who ever held the championship, and that goes for Gene Tunney, who practically trained himself. Joe is up at six each morning, does six or eight miles on the road before breakfast. He is actually fond of roadwork, the most important single item in training."

Fights Won in Gymnasium
"Hard work in a gymnasium makes a fight easy. Louis is a hard worker in the gymnasium. Regardless of what anybody tells you, that's where fights are won—on the road and in the gymnasium training ring."

"If your fighter's bad in spots, you can correct him in the gym. In a fight it's too late. "Selection of sparring partners is important. I know how Conn fights. I'll pick men that have his style. I won't find everything in points for good athletes, the situation is no different than any school trying to lure such boys. Certainly money is not the lure, and once they get there they know that, even if they get a touchdown every time they get their hands on the ball, away from the practice field they are simply cadet X with no more privileges than any other cadet."

Where an idea that when football levels off, as it is bound to do, and Army and Navy start losing games now and then the same as any other schools, there will be no complaint to the effect they are not college teams.

They have had the man-power edge the last two or three years because there were good athletes there who, if not there, would have been away in the service somewhere. In keeping these boys for two or three years without fear of their being taken away, the coaches have had the opportunity to blend them into cohesive teams. Other schools soon will be doing the same thing. Then watch the fur fly!

NINE CUB CATCHERS
Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—The National League champion Chicago Cubs, who had the strongest catching staff in the league last season, will have a stronger one next season, if numbers mean anything. The Bruins currently have nine catchers on their roster, six of them discharged veterans.

Mather To Meet Marquette In Opener Friday

Munising—The Mather high school basketball season will get underway this Friday evening when the Marquette high school quint will invade the local court. A preliminary between the two schools' B teams will start at 7 p. m. and the main game will start at 8:15. Season tickets have been placed on sale and any individual wishing to purchase them can do so by calling 252.

With only two veterans left from the past season, Mazzoli, guard, and Bernard, forward, Coach Jack Geniesse has been busy with green material trying to find a potent starting lineup for the opener. Some of the boys who might see action Friday night are Salo, Reed at center, Luell, Raymond and Bernard, forwards. Only one guard is certain of a place in the starting lineup and that is Mazzoli.

What seems to be lacking, Geniesse stated, was the fact that the team lacks a sparkplug—one boy who can be depended upon to score at least 10 or 15 points in a game. The team has looked fairly good on the defense, but on the offensive the team has been way off in scrimmages.

Gravet at two veterans back this year from their Class B champs of last year. With several boys moved up to the first team from an excellent second team of last year, a very good basketball game is in prospect for Friday night.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—Grain futures couldn't develop much of a trend today in listless trading. Wheat held firm most of the time, but oats and rye generally were firm today. Strong demand for cash wheat and flour continues to bring some buying into the wheat pit. The Chicago Board of Trade publication, said additional army buying for overseas feed and a liberal volume of export business featured the milling trade, but that millers still were having trouble getting wheat.

SELLING WIPES OUT ADVANCES

BY HUDSON PHILLIPS

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Stock market prices generally lost fractions to around 3 points today in a wave of last-minute selling which wiped out or greatly reduced gains in a number of categories.

Airlines, some farm implements and part of the rubbers managed to hold on to a portion of their gains. General Motors President Charles E. Wilson's failure to participate in Washington conference with labor department representatives concerning strike-bound plants helped depress auto shares.

Until the selloff steels were mixed coincident with the nation-wide vote by workers in the industry on whether to strike for a $2 a day wage increase.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite fell 3 of a point to 75.0. The carrier average was off 8 of a point to 47.6. Of 102 issues dealt in, 41 advanced, 43 declined and 18 were unchanged.

Lower were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone & Telegraph, International Telephone & Telegraph, Du Pont, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co. and Schenley.

Higher were Goodyear, International Harvester, Boeing, American Airlines, Anacosta, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Gypsum and International Telephone & Telegraph. Touching new yearly highs were Sinclair, Laclede Gas and Eastern Air Lines, the latter on a greatly improved earnings report.

Gainers in the curb included Ogden Corp., American Cyanamid, Phillips Petroleum, Western Union and Republic. Transfers here totaled 1,150,000 shares against 1,060,000 Tuesday.

BONDS CLOSE LOWER
New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—The bond market ran into selling difficulties in the final hour today and ended mostly lower after holding in a narrow range the greater part of the session.

Offerings were concentrated in the secondary rail group after two days of rising prices. The Milwaukee bonds, spearheaded by the advance earlier in the week, ended 1/8 higher to a point lower. The Rock Island bonds were narrow as were those of the Missouri Pacific and Eastern Income 4s.

New Haven bonds made good progress at one time but faltered with the rest of the list and were mixed at the final hour.

Emerging with modest plus marks were Pennsylvania Central Airlines 3 1/2s, Peoria & Eastern Income 4s, American & Foreign Power 5s, Boston & New York Airline 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1/2s, Cuba Northern Railway 5 1/2s and Firestone 3 1/2s. U. S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Foreign dollar bonds followed the general market, but with some changes both ways generally in fractions. Yugoslav Bank 7s, an inactive issue, dropped 4 points to 16 on sale of one bond.

Total sales of $8,252,000, compared with $8,010,000 on Tuesday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails dropped 2 of a point to 102 1/2.

FARMERS HOSTS AT STEAK FEED

Business Men Guests At Venison Supper Last Night At Cornell

Business men members of the Escanaba Potato Boosters Association last night were guests of Delta county farmers at the third annual venison steak supper and program at Cornell township hall, where ladies of the P. T. A. served dinner to about 150 persons.

August Lundgaard of Cornell, toastmaster, was introduced by Clayton Ford. O. V. Thatcher of Escanaba led the group in singing and Fred Earle of Escanaba was speaker of the evening.

Earle traced the early history of farming in Delta county, and its development from the turn of the century through the economic aftermath of the World War II period. He described early efforts at encouraging agriculture in the county as a part of a whole program for "Cloverland," a name coined by the U. P. Development Bureau.

Thousands of head of cattle and sheep were brought to the cutover lands of the Upper Peninsula from the west, and while it was found that livestock fattened well during the summer season on the range, a market depression shortly after the experiment started caused the program to fail. Farmers turned to dairying and the raising of potatoes and other cash crops, but Earle expressed the opinion that the raising of beef cattle and sheep might someday make a comeback, to stay.

His talk ended on a note of optimism for the future of farming in the county, and he congratulated farmers and business men of the county on their cooperative effort.

Bert Young of Escanaba further amplified the theme of cooperation. The time is past, he said, when the farmer views the city businessman with suspicion, and the urban dweller talks against higher prices for farm produce. Both know that both must be prosperous for a prosperous community, he added.

Ladies of the P. T. A. unit preparing and serving the dinner included:

Mesdames Olive Gagner, Ann Schultz, Tom Anderson, Clayton Ford, W. Bradway, Grey Knuts, Ann Herrod, Gertrude Mattson, John Buckland, Harold Woodard, Morton Schire, Howard Schire, Fred Bennette, Ted McFadden, Gus McFadden, Joe Steff, Gerald Steff, Frank Falkies, and the Misses Louise Heynesnes, Mary Jane Verbrigghe, Cecelia Verbrigghe, Irene, Margaret and Mary Lippens, Janet DeBacker, Dolores and Eunice Way and Mary Terrien.

The black men have a tack and the red men have a ring in the top to distinguish them.

U. P. Snow Fighters Plow 1,700 Miles Of Trunkline

The job of keeping open approximately 1,728 miles of state trunklines in the Upper Peninsula this winter falls to experienced snow fighters, the men who operate the plows, scrapers and sanders so that highway traffic may keep rolling 365 days a year.

State highways in 12 of the 15 Upper Peninsula counties are maintained by county road commission crews under contract with the state highway department, and in the other three counties the work is done under a direct maintenance program by the state, according to information from the U. P. highway office in Escanaba. In the contract counties the work is performed to certain specifications established by State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler.

While the winter maintenance of Upper Peninsula trunklines has always been important, it is particularly so this first postwar winter, when the volume of traffic is increasing. The counties are also faced with the problem of keeping many older trucks and plows in operation past their normal life-time of service, since new equipment is still difficult to obtain.

Besides accommodating through traffic, trunkline highways must be kept open for the movement of more localized traffic such as school buses, rural mail routes, milk routes and the transportation of farm products. Menominee and Delta counties are important dairy areas, and in each of the counties more than 200,000 pounds of milk are collected daily and trucked to creameries and cheese factories.

Trunklines are kept clear for traffic even in severe snowstorms by starting the plowing early and keeping the plows going as long as the storm continues. Equipment in the counties ranges from giant rotary plows capable of cutting through the deepest drifts, to small truck plows.

Ontonagon county has the greatest snowfall of any county in the Upper Peninsula, and with other counties in the Copper Country has an annual snowfall depth of more than 200 inches. Ontonagon county also has many steep hills. At Military Hill on US-45 where the highway enters and leaves the Ontonagon river valley a roadside telephone is maintained for use in emergencies.

Many miles of trunkline highways in the Upper Peninsula are bordered with special tree plantings designed to prevent drifting. In other sections many miles of snow fencing are used for the same purpose.

In the eastern Upper Peninsula Luce county normally has the most snowfall each winter, and Menominee county, southernmost county in the U. P., has the least. Delta and Dickinson counties have an accumulative snowfall slightly higher than Menominee county.

Me Cold, Officer, I'm Wearing Beard

New York (AP)—People can wear most anything in New York and frequently do, but when one individualist strolled near Central Park braving autumn winds in knee-length shorts and black beard and nothing else, it cost him $5. The inadequate defense: the costume was a health measure.
